

Venue for the: 34th meeting of Ecma TC39
in: London, United Kingdom
on: 21 – 23 May 2013

TIME: 10:00 till 17:00 on 21st and 22nd of May 2013
10:00 till 16:00 on 23rd of May 2013

LOCATION: Google London
Belgrave House
76 Buckingham Palace Rd
London, Greater London SW1W 9TQ
Mr. Alex Russel's e-mail: slightlyoff@google.com
Mr. Alex Russel's local phone number: 074 0231 6755

Please register here before 16th of May 2013.

The office is across the street from Victoria Station. When you arrive, I (or another googler) will greet you on the ground floor where you'll need to sign in to the build, and then we'll go to the 5th floor where you'll also need to sign into Google. Apologies that it's so complicated. We're meeting on the 3rd floor in a room called "Alan Turing" which is slightly on the smal-ish side but which has audio and video conference equipment for those who can't attend in person. See: <https://plus.google.com/110793544615967733816/about>.

As I mentioned at the last F2F, I wouldn't really look for a hotel that's near the venue as it's both sort of dead at night in that area and is well-serviced by both tube and bus, so getting to the office is straightforward from most of central London. Google Maps has good public transit coverage here, which makes it that much easier.

If you find yourself in London and need any sort of help or assistance, don't hesitate to call my local number: 074 0231 6755.